57 The imperative

USE

- To give orders and instructions:

Stop!

Don't go!

Turn left at the traffic lights and then turn right.

FORM

- The imperative has the same form as the infinitive:

Wait!

The negative is formed by adding don't:

Don't wait!

Don't stop!

Notes

- The imperative is used to give instructions in the second person, i.e. (You) wait!. The form is the same for the singular and the plural.

Let's is a kind of imperative for we:

Let's go.

Let's not wait. (Note the negative.)

- The imperative is not always very polite. It is more polite to say Could I have ... or Would you ...

Give me some bread —* Could I have wine bread, please?

Open the door -> Would you open the door, please?

- The imperative may sometimes be used for requests to people we know well, or for orders given by people in authority. It is often used when speaking to children or soldiers.

Practice

Mr and Mrs Brownridge are talking to their children, Joe and Emma.

In your notebook, write what they say.

1 The door's closed. Emma can open it.

2 Joe's going to touch the cooker. It's hot.

3 I don't want Emma to be late tonight.

1 Open the door, Emms!

2 Don't touch the cooker, Joe!

4 I need to lift this box. Emma can help me do it.

5 It's time for Joe to get up.

6 I want Emma to bring me another biscuit.

7 I want Joe to be quiet.

8 The window's closed: it's hot. Emma's there.

9 I'd like Emma to turn down her stereo.

10 I'd like Joe to pass the salt.

Conditionals

There are three main types of conditional. These are usually described as the first, second and third conditionals.

58 The first conditional

FORM

if + present simple	future
If you drop it,	it'll break.
If you come at ten,	we'll be ready.
If you phone me,	I'll pick you up at the park.
or future	if + present simple
It'll break	if you drop it.
We'll be ready	if you come at ten.
I'll pick you up later	if you phone me.

USE

- The first conditional refers to the future. It is used when there is a possibility that the if-event might happen.

If it rains, we'll go to the cinema. (= It might rain: it might not)

If the sun shines, we'll go to the beach. [= The sun might shine: it might not)

Note: going to is sometimes used in the first conditional to describe a future plan:

If it rains, we're going to visit my mother.

Practice

Write these sentences, putting the verbs in brackets into the present simple or the future simple.

- 1 If the train's late, we (walk).
if the train's late, well walk.
- 2 She (call) you if she (have) time.
She'll call you If she has time.

- 13 If it (snow) this winter, we (go) skiing.
- 14 I (lend) them some money if they (ask) me.
- 15 If you (visit) Oxford, you (see) some interesting old buildings.

59 The second conditional

FORM

if + past simple If T lived by the sea, If they asked me to work for them.	would/could/might + infinitive I would do a lot of swimming. I might accept.
or would/could/might + infinitive I would do a lot of swimming i might accept	if + past simple if I lived by the sea. if they asked me to work for them.

Notes

- The 'past' here is actually the subjunctive, which is the same as the past simple except for two forms - I and he/she + were:
If I were you, I'd change my job.
If John were here, he wouldn't be very happy.
- In conventional English, these two forms can be replaced by the past:
If I was you, I'd change my job.
If John was here, he wouldn't be very happy.
- would* is often shortened to 'd.

USE

- The second conditional refers to the present or future.
The if-event is either
  - hypothetical;
If I worked in that factory, I'd soon change things, (but I don't work in that factory)
If I spoke French, my job would be a lot easier, (but I don't speak French)
  - unlikely:
If she left her husband, she might be happier, (but T don't think she's going to leave her husband)

Practice

Write these sentences, putting the verbs in brackets into the correct tense.

- If you drove more carefully, you (not have) so many accidents.
If you drove more carefully, you wouldn't have so many accidents.
- If he (get up) earlier, he'd get to work on time.
If he got up earlier, he'd get to work on time.
- If we (have) more time, I could tell you more about it.

- 4 If you (sell) more products, you'd earn more money.
- 5 I could help you if you (trust) me more.
- 6 His car would be a lot safer if he (buy) some new tyres.
- 7 The children would be better swimmers if they (go) swimming more frequently.
- 8 I wouldn't mind having children if we (live) in the country.
- 9 If I (be) you, I wouldn't worry about going to university.
- 10 If I (have) any money, I'd give you some.
- 11 Your parents (be) a lot happier if you phoned them more often.
- 12 Where would you like to live if you (not live) in Paris?
- 13 What would you do if you suddenly (win) half a million pounds?
- 14 Would you mind if I (not give) you the money I owe you today?
- 15 If I had to go to hospital, (not go) to this one.

60 First and second conditional

CONTRAST

Some students get confused by the difference between the first and second conditional. Look at these two sentences;

a) If she works harder, she'll pass her exams.

b) If she worked harder, she'd pass her exams.

The difference between the two sentences can be found by asking the question, 'Is she going to work harder?' In sentence a) the answer is, 'Maybe - and maybe not'. The answer to sentence b) is, 'Probably not'. The difference is the idea in the speaker's mind of what is going to happen. The if-event in a first conditional sentence is more likely to happen than the if-event in a second conditional.

Check

Circle the correct answer to the questions below.

- 1 'If Mary found out what was happening, she'd be very angry.'

Is Mary going to find out what's happening?

A Maybe (B) Probably not

- 7 'If they don't agree with me, I'll go to the director.'

A Maybe B Yes C No

- 9 'If I don't like your ideas, I'll say so.'

A Maybe not                      B Probably
- 10 'If I didn't like your ideas, I'd say so.'
Do I usually like your ideas?
A Maybe              B Yes              C No

61 Zero conditional

There is another conditional which is often called zero conditional.

FORM

if + present simple	present simple
If you press the button,	the machine switches off.
If you go in the best seats,	you get a free drink.
or present simple	if + present simple
The machine switches off	if you press this button.
You get a free drink	if you go in the best seats.

USE

- If has the same meaning as when here.

The zero conditional is used:

- a) for instructions:

If you select reverse gear, the car goes backwards.

If the camera is on, a red light appears.

- b) for general truths:

if he's got no money, he doesn't go out.

- 10 The machine stops automatically if something (go) wrong.

Modals

'Modals' are the small verbs like can, must, and might, which give certain meanings to main verbs.

FORM

There are twelve modal verbs:

can	shall	must
could	should	ought to may	will	need (to)
might	would	dare

- Positive is formed by putting the modal between the subject and the main verb:

We should stay.

You ought to go.

He might come.

- Negative is formed by adding not (or n't) after the modal:

We shouldn't stay.

You ought not to come.

He might not come.

- Questions are formed by changing the position of the modal and the subject:

Should we stay?

Shouldn't we stay?

Ought you to go?

Oughtn't you to go?

Might he come?

Mightn't he come?

Notes

- need can be needn't [modal form] or don't need to (verb form).
- Negative questions generally use n't. If not is used, there is a different word order:
Shouldn't we stay?      Should we not stay?

62 Using modals in questions and negatives

Do you like watching TV?
She's good at swimming.
- It is formed by adding ing to the infinitive:
go -> going
stay - staying
The negative is formed by adding not:
Would you mind not smoking?

Note: the changes that are sometimes necessary:

*lie — lying (ie —* y)*

take — taking (single e: c is omitted)

sit — sitting (single vowel + single consonant — single vowel + double consonant)

Practice

67a In your notebook, write the gerund of these verbs.

Direct speech

He said, 'I'm going home.'

'I'm going home,' he said.

Indirect speech

He says he's going home.

He said he was going home.

DIRECT SPEECH

75 Writing direct speech

She said, 'My name's Stella.'

'My name's Stella,' she said.

- Direct speech reports the exact words the speaker says. Put quotation marks ('...') before and after the speaker's statement.

Notes

The speaker's statement always starts with a capital letter.

she said can go before or after the statement, but is separated from it by a comma (,).

Commas and full stops after the statement go inside the quotation marks.

Question marks go inside the quotation marks.

Question marks are not followed by a comma:

are you?' she said.

Practice

1 the bus driver

76    say, tell

CONTRAST

- tell has a personal direct object (e.g. me, hint, her, etc. >- Exercise 79)

She told me she was going to be late.

'It's too late,' she told me.

{We cannot say: Ha told the weather was nice.}

tell is not used before questions. {We cannot say: He told me, 'Have you met before?'}

say never has a personal direct object:

She said she was going to be late.

'It's too late,' she said.

The indirect object {to me, to her, to us, etc. Exercise 79} is used instead.

I don't like them very much,' she said to me quietly.

Why did he say that to you?

There are a few special phrases in which tell does not have to take a personal direct object:

tell the truth

RELATIVE CLAUSES

Relative clauses with who and that

- Look at this sentence:
The man gave me some money.
If we want to describe the man, we can use an adjective [old, thin, young, etc]:
The old man gave me some money.
- However, sometimes the information we want to give is more complicated.
The old man met me at the airport. He gave me some money.
The two sentences can be combined, to show which old man gave me the money:
The old man who met me at the airport gave me the money.
who met me at the airport is a clause (a mini-sentence in the larger sentence). It is called a relative clause because it relates to (= connects with) a noun in the larger sentence.

FORM

(NOT ~~I was talking to a person who he worked with my father.~~)
This is the man who I met in Paris.
(NOT ~~This is the man who / met him in Paris~~)

We'll pick you up outside the station.

The plane took off very quickly.

The meaning of a phrasal verb can be similar to the original verb:

The car slowed down and then stopped. (= similar meaning to slow)

- or it can be completely different to the original:

I'm going to give up smoking. (= different meaning to give)

A: Oh hello. Nice to see you again. Did you have a good holiday? I was planning to ring you up to ask you about it.

B: Yes, it was lovely. We had to set off really early because the plane took off at 6 a.m. But then we were on the beach in the sun by lunchtime.

A: Great! And what did you do most days?

B: Well, we usually slept in. It was very nice not having to get up early. And then we stayed up late at night, going out to discos and nightclubs. During the day, we usually lay on the beach or looked round the town.

A: And what about food?

B: Well, we didn't usually have any breakfast. By the time we got downstairs at the hotel, they had cleared away all the breakfast things. We tried out different restaurants for lunch and most of them were very good. The fish was particularly nice. And we usually stayed in for dinner at the hotel.

A: So what did you like best?

B: I liked everything - the beaches, the weather, the food, the night life, the people. I'd like to go back again next year so I'm saving up for it already. People book very early for that area so I must fix it up after the New Year. If I carry on saving for a few months, I'll have enough money.

102 Phrasal verbs that take an object but do not separate

She was very ill last year but she has got over the illness now.

He takes after his father. He's got the same blonde hair and blue eyes and the same gentle manner.

She works in the mornings but she can't live off that. She must find a full-time job.

I came across an old photograph of you yesterday. It was taken when you were at school.

- Some phrasal verbs do not have the object between the verb and the particle. In these verbs, the verb and the particle cannot separate. They are inseparable. The object can only go after the verb and the particle:

I'd like to go out tonight. Can you look after the children? (to look after = to take care of someone or something)

verb      particle      object

We cannot say: Can you. look the children after?

- When the object is a pronoun, it goes after the phrasal verb in the same way: Can you. look after them?

- Examples of phrasal verbs that take an object but do not separate:

to get over = to recover from something, e.g. an illness, the death of a relative or friend, etc. That is, to get better after something bad happens to you to take after = to look or behave like a parent (or older relative) to live off = to get money from something to pay for everything you need to live, e.g. food, clothes, transport, etc.

to come across = to find something or meet someone by chance
